Annex A: Scope of Work

SCOPE OF WORK ECCE Implementation Research Firm CATALYZE ECCE LAC—Honduras

A. COMPANY OVERVIEW

Palladium International LLC is a leading global consulting firm that manages nearly $2 billion in donor-funded projects in more than 90 countries while simultaneously providing management consulting advice to private sector firms and local and national governments throughout the world. It is well-known for its work in private sector development, market systems, innovative/inclusive finance, and the formation of public-private alliances. Palladium adds value by aligning business interests with development objectives, leveraging donor resources with commercial assets and vice versa. This market-driven approach ensures interventions are impactful, inclusive, and address the root causes of today's biggest development challenges while also being sustainable beyond the life of a particular donor-funded program.

B. PROJECT AND BUY-IN OVERVIEW

Palladium International, LLC is implementing the $250 million, 8-year USAID CATALYZE contract which offers a facilitated partnership model that will craft solutions to crowdsource $2 billion in blended finance (i.e., blended concessional and commercial finance) to USAID partner countries; it can work in any development sector or region.

The CATALYZE Early Childhood Care & Education (ECCE) activity aims to enhance access to low-cost and high-quality ECCE which unlocks inclusive development, improving child outcomes, promoting women's economic empowerment, enhancing family welfare, and driving overall economic growth. ECCE seeks to fill the gap in education that nearly 593 million children below primary school age currently experience; specifically, they lack access to appropriate childcare in emerging economies, constraining human capital growth. Meanwhile, women, who assume an estimated 75% of childcare responsibilities worldwide are often unable to pursue economic opportunities given care responsibilities. As a result, 606 million women worldwide are excluded from the global labour force, with consequent impacts on productivity and economic growth.

The gap in access to high-quality ECCE results from both supply and demand-side constraints. While the public sector provides ECCE in most markets, coverage is often incomplete or poorly aligned with household needs. Non-state, including private, faith-based, philanthropically supported, and community-led ECCE are an important complement to government provided ECCE, but non-state ECCE providers are scarce in many markets. Barriers to offering non-state ECCE services include inconsistent or fragmented registration and accreditation requirements, limited access to financing, and limited profitability given substantial operating costs resulting from high caregiver-child ratios. Even when childcare providers exist, accessible options are often low-quality due to a lack of trained professionals in the field. On the demand-side, many families do not access ECCE due to high cost, low-quality provision, misalignment between existing services and their needs, and cultural norms discouraging use of childcare outside the home.

In addition to expanding equitable access to high-quality ECCE to improve learning outcomes for children and improving livelihood outcomes for women, the ECCE Family of Investments aims to building an evidence base around the most effective models and approaches for leveraging multi-stakeholder investment and innovation to reach these goals. These interventions serve as the innovation incubator aimed at providing evidence to clarify how blended finance approaches and public-private partnership models can efficiently improve outcomes for young learners and their families.

C. OBJECTIVE and PURPOSE OF ECCE LAC—Honduras

The LAC-Honduras buy-in has two components. The first is ECCE focused and aims to:

- Increase equitable access to ECCE. Per USAID's How -To Note on Developing High-Quality Pre-Primary Programs, all children between ages 3-6 should have at least one year of steady access to quality ECCE (where availability is limited), but children should ideally be enrolled in ECCE for two to three years. Likewise, access to quality ECCE is also important for younger children between 0-3 as it provides a safe, nurturing environment for care and quality education outside the home, enabling female caregivers pursue economic opportunities. Access is defined along five key dimensions:
 - Availability: ECCE should be available during hours that facilitate the engagement of women in the formal labour force, although half-day programs are not inappropriate for improving children's learning and development outcomes.
 - Accessibility: High-quality ECCE services targeting children ages 0-6 should be present in urban, peri-urban and rural communities, including and households should not be required to put forth undue effort to use ECCE services.
 - Accommodation: ECCE service provision should be adapted to address the specific needs of the poor, children with disabilities, and ethnic or religious minorities between ages 0-6.
 - Affordability: The cost of ECCE should be commensurate with household income levels in a given community such that no children are unable to attend on the basis of cost.
 - Acceptability: Social norms should not stigmatize the use of ECCE services or otherwise hamper women's ability to access childcare.
- Improve program quality. "Program quality" includes issues of structural quality such as teacher training (see also below), class size/student-teacher ratio, access to adequate nutrition, and the physical safety of the learning environment. Program quality also encompasses process quality; for example, are curricula developmentally appropriate? Are there positive teacher-student interactions? Does the program follow play-based pedagogy with appropriate learning materials readily available? Do ECCE providers appropriately engage with families and communities to encourage better learning outcomes, etc.? Is the provider using validated metrics to monitor and evaluate learning and child development? Is the provider using regular formative assessment data to inform the provision of education including appropriate play?

- Support the professionalization of ECCE providers. Per the USAID How-To Note, a pre-primary “teacher” is anyone who leads a group of children with the aim of improving their early learning skills, including people recognized by an authority as a professional, as well as those who are not. This could include teachers, teaching assistants, facilitators, paraprofessionals, care providers, volunteers, etc. Ideally “teachers”, as broadly defined above, would receive specialized pre- and in-service training, and be guided by a professional competency framework that details the knowledge, skills, abilities, and behaviors needed to provide quality ECCE. Professionalization also includes strengthening management practices and establishing payment systems for teachers, among other tasks.
- Design and promote market-based solutions that increase formal employment and self-employment opportunities both inside and outside the ECCE sector. The workforce in the care economy (including ECCE) is largely female and offers employment and income generation opportunities for women who expand affordable childcare to underserved communities. Additionally, expanded access to high-quality ECCE may enable female caregivers to access childcare to pursue income-generating opportunities outside the ECCE sector.

The second ECCE LAC Activity, funded by the Gender Equality and Women’s Empowerment Hub (GenDev) at USAID, will provide technical and vocational training as well as social norms engagement activities, including:

- Increase women’s advancement, economic security, and empowerment (formality of sector, pay, and women’s flexibility, e.g., with schedules).
- Increase intrahousehold impacts, including but not limited to bargaining power, IPV, and time use (both paid and unpaid for women and men).
- Improve wellbeing, including but not limited to, mental health, and physical, and stress.

D. IMPLEMENTATION RESEARCH

CATALYZE ECCE seeks to conduct implementation research in Honduras with the goal of assessing the outcomes of the EduFinance team’s interventions in ECCE centers. The research will consider the extent to which these interventions lead to improved learning and developmental outcomes for children and improvements in service quality. The assessment will involve two main parts:

- Child outcomes assessment: Children’s initial learning and development status (e.g., emergent language and literacy, emerging numeracy, socio-emotional learning, and physical development) will be measured using standardized tools, such as IDELA or MELQO depending on age range. The tools will be administered in the schools via one-on-one interactions between the assessor and the child.
- Classroom observation: Classroom observation is intended to provide insights into the teaching and learning dynamics within a classroom, providing information on teaching strategies, student engagement, classroom interactions, learning environment, and instructional effectiveness. Classroom observation of children and teachers will use a standardized tool (such as the BEQI), plus a small custom-designed tool, to assess service quality and accessibility, how the interventions are being administered, and capacity of ECCE center staff.

The survey will include a baseline and endline assessment, conducted in Catalyze EduFinance-funded schools and in comparable schools in the same community. The baseline is anticipated to take place in January 2024 and the endline will take place in mid-2025. The standardized and customize-designed tools for the assessment will be determined in consultation with the research firm, implementing partners, government officials, USAID, and other stakeholders.

For the purpose of the technical and financial proposals, applicants should assume that the evaluation is undertaken in eight departments throughout Honduras, and that the sample will consist of 40 schools total, with around 20 children (ages 3-5) randomly selected per school and 3-4 teachers assessed per school. These figures may be changed before the contract with the research firm is finalized.

E. TASKS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

The selected research firm will work with Palladium’s team to support the final design of the evaluation, be responsible for field work and all data collection, data analysis, and producing the draft of the baseline and final reports. The research firm will also support the submission of the protocol for local Honduras IRB approval,
